Question: 1

Veeam Games, Inc. has identified a subset of VMware virtual machine workloads for a disaster recovery pilot. To facilitate the requirement for near-real-time replication, you position Veeam CDP.
Veeam Games, Inc. is concerned that downtime on the Veeam Backup & Replication server, such as during a patch cycle, will disrupt replication and impact their disaster recovery strategy.
What happens to CDP replication when the Veeam Backup & Replication server is unavailable?
Response:

A. Replication pauses and will pick up where it left off once the job has been manually restarted.
B. Replication fails and the policy needs to be manually restarted.
C. Replication picks up where it left off automatically once the Veeam Backup & Replication coordinator service is back online.
D. Existing replication policies continue uninterrupted.

Answer: D

Question: 2

Veeam Games, Inc.'s systems contain customers' credit card and personal information. Therefore, it is recommended to use both network transport encryption and backup job encryption.
What adjustments to Veeam component resources need to be made to accommodate these additional features?
Response:

A. Increase the memory on the gateway server.
B. Increase CPU cores on the proxy server(s).
C. Increase disk capacity on the proxy server.
D. Increase disk capacity on the repository server.

Answer: B

Question: 3

Some of the virtual machines are located in a demilitarized zone. Veeam Games, Inc. has stated that they will not allow additional ports to be open. What sort of assumptions should be made and validated with the customer for proper application aware backup to complete?
(Choose 2)
Response:

A. Windows user access control will be automatically disabled for all Linux virtual machines by property configuring the VMware tools.
B. It will be possible to define 'guest interaction proxies' to access virtual machines in the demilitarized zone and minimize the number of ports to open.
C. The VMware tools revision will be within a supported range.
D. It will be possible to deploy Veeam Agents for virtual machines residing in a demilitarized zone. The Veeam agents only require port 6180 to be open, which minimizes risks.

Answer: BC

Question: 4

What should be done to ensure that all backups are scanned for malware during a restore?
Response:

A. Configure all backup jobs to enforce malware scanning during all restore activities.
B. Configure an application group containing all virtual machines and configure a SureBackup job with malware scanning enabled.
C. Write a manual process to be followed by the backup operators to enable malware scanning during all restore activities.
D. Configure the general configuration to enforce malware scanning during all restore activities.

Answer: C
